

THE RATLIFF (RADCLYFFE) FAMILY TREE

The names Ratliff and Ratcliffe are English. They are variants of Ratcliff and Ratcliffe, which mean "one who came from Ratcliff, the name of several places in England." Ratcliff means "red cliff." Other spellings of the name include Ratclife, Ratcleff, Ratclieff, Ratclyffe, Rattcliffe, Radclive, Radcliff, Radcliffe, Redclyffe, and Radclyffe.

The earliest Ratliff in America was Captain John Ratcliffe, who commanded the ship "Discovery," which was one of the three ships that landed at Cape Henry, Virginia on April 26, 1607. John Ratcliffe was part of the first permanent English Colony settlement called Jamestown, Virginia, which was founded on May 13, 1607. John was captured and killed by Indians in 1610 because of a fight that broke out between the Indians and John's colonists while making trades with the Indian Chief Powhatan. The next Ratliff who came to America from England was Roger Ratcliffe, who was born in 1575. Roger came to America in 1619 with his wife Ann and son Isaac Ratcliffe. Robert Ratcliffe came to Virginia in 1621, Thomas Ratcliffe to Plymouth, Massachusetts in 1622, Elkington Ratcliffe, a servant of Ralph Hamor, to James City, Virginia in 1623, Philip Ratcliffe to Salem, Massachusetts in 1630, Michael Ratcliffe to Virginia in 1634, Edward Ratcliffe to Virginia in 1641, Thomas Ratcliffe to New Castle County, Delaware in 1642, Thomas Ratcliffe to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania in 1648, Charles Ratcliffe to Virginia in 1650, Thomas Ratcliffe to America in 1656, Elizabeth Ratcliffe to Barbadoes or Jamaica in 1685, and Edward, Mary, James, Rachell, Rebecca, Richard Ratcliffe to Philadelphia, Pennsylvania in 1685. Other Ratliffs emigrated to America into the 1860's.

LUCIA Married IVA DE TAILBOIS (1-1). Lucia was the daughter of Earl Aelfgar, who was the son of Godifu "Lady Godiva" and Leofric the Great, who was the son of Leofwine.

2-1.Nicholas Fitz Gilbert (changed his name to Nicholas de Redclyffe) (Count Roger de Poitou was given the entire lands between the Ribble and the Mersey, these lands were given unto him by the Rising of Edgar the Aetheling in 1069, Roger divided these lands among a select few of his barons, who in turn partitioned their holdings to their own knights to be held for them in vassalage by the military service) (among the knights of the Baron de Marsey was Nicholas Fitz-Gilbert de Tailbois, a younger son of the Baron of Kendal to whom his lord gave the manor of Redclyffe) (most Norman surnames derived from their place of origin, however, this was not true of Nicholas de Tailbois, whose lineage can trace both name and descent from the Norman Conquest) (the name of Talbot was borne by many of Duke William's followers who were not necessarily connected by blood) (Nicholas de Tailbois wanted to shed his record of foreign origin by assuming the style and title of an Englishman, he adopted for his surname the name of his manor and hence was known as Sir Nicholas Redclyffe, meaning Nicholas of the Red Cliff)

2-2.Aeltfred (had son Ketel who married Christina and they had son Orme who married Gunilda, daughter of Gospatric, Earl of Northumberland) (Orme and Gunilda had son Curwens, Lord of Workington)

LADY CECILIA DE MONTBEGON Married WILLIAM DE RADECLIVE (6-2). Lady Cecilia was of Kirkland, daughter of one of the most powerful barons in the north. Montbegons had vast holdings from the Conqueror and on the creation of the Honour of Lancaster by Henry the First they were ceded further lands. In 1149, when Stephen temporarily resigned to the Earl of Chester his lands between Ribble and Mersey, the Montbegon holdings were exempt from the grant in a desire to retain the favor of this most powerful baron. Several years after the death of Lady Cecilia, William remarried to Eugenia, who was the daughter of Alexander, who was the son of Uvieth. In 1221, a year after William died, Eugenia sued William's son Adam de Redclyffe, for her dower in a third part of Redclyffe, Edgeworth, and Little Lever including lands in Entwistle and Quarlton. Jordan de Quickenlos dispossessed Eugenia and held the estate until 1246 when she recovered it upon his failure to appear in answer to a suit since the boundaries of these lands had been subject to continuous dispute.
